Upcoming University Honor Bands

Many colleges and universities operate "honor bands", events in which talented and dedicated young musicians can get together to rehearse and perform with a world-renown conductor and have a really fun and meaningful experience. Honor Bands are a fantastic way to motivate students to become better musicians and they look great on college resumes. We HIGHLY suggest that all students apply to at least one honor band per year.

Below are some of the upcoming honor bands. While we want to help make you aware of these events, it is the responsible of students and their parents to apply and register. As always, we are here to help if you have any questions

Exception: ALL students MUST register with the band directors for ALL-STATE & DISTRICT II Honor Band
